Galloway Twp., NJ – On Thursday, October 9th, from 7 to 9 pm in the Townsend Residential Life Center, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey will host a talk by Ellen Augustine, co-author of Taking Back Our Lives in the Age of Corporate Dominance.

Ms. Augustine will speak on The Job Market Advantage: Understanding Green Principles and Local/Global Myths. She will discuss her premise that today’s students want both financially rewarding and meaningful work, and that this goal is more attainable than ever in today’s global economy. She will share profiles of corporate executives who not only generate a profit for their organizations but also consider their employees and their communities in doing so.

For additional information about Ellen Augustine, please visit her Web site at <http://www.storiesofhope.us/>. Ms. Augustine’s visit to the Stockton campus is sponsored by the faculty-staff committee on sustainability, part of Residential Life’s Living Learning Communities designed to connect Stockton students, faculty and staff around curricular and co-curricular themes and interests. The Sustainability Living Learning Community seeks to educate and expose students to the need for tangible sustainable solutions through the explorations of issues involving energy conservation, healthy social systems, and public accountability of business, government, media, and the non-profit sector.
