Assessment Plan: What are your anticipated outcomes and specific measurements for success?

The central outcome for this project will be the one-day Stockton Votes Festival on the Galloway campus to take place biennially, starting in Fall 2018. However, as part of this signature event on the Galloway campus, outreach to the area community and to Stockton’s other campuses will extend the reach of this project. As noted above, there will be outreach to the Galloway community, in partnership with the Galloway Township branch of the Atlantic County Library, to invite area residents to the festival activities. And there will be voting promotional materials and voter registration packets developed for other Stockton campus locations.

As this will be a recurring event on campus, assessment efforts will be an important part of the overall project. The data gathered about the impacts of the inaugural Stockton Votes Festival in Fall 2018 will inform planning for the event in the future.

Stockton Votes Festival

2020 Initiatives Engagement Proposal

Dr. Claire Abernathy

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Narrative Summary of Project

This 2020 grant for the Stockton Votes Festival will be used to support student planning and implementation of a non-partisan voter registration and get-out-the-vote drive on campus, specifically a one-day voter registration and mobilization festival hosted on the Galloway campus in early October 2018 and 2020. Developing “engaged and effective citizens” is central to Stockton’s mission, and the Stockton Votes Festival directly furthers that university goal, helping to facilitate political awareness and participation for Stockton students, faculty and staff, as well as area community members. By some indications, Stockton is already making strides toward this mission - the National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement report shows Stockton’s record of student political participation in recent elections, and, in 2016, 78.8% of our students were registered to vote and 53.1% of our students turned out to vote. Though Stockton’s performance exceeds the average voting rate of 50.4% observed for other institutions nationwide, there is room to improve the political involvement of our students. There needs to be a clear effort to keep voter registration rates climbing and work to close the gap between registration and voter turnout in elections, convincing Stockton students to not only register but also cast their ballots.

The Stockton Votes Festival will be the featured event in the campus’ efforts around voter registration and political mobilization on campus, and this student-led event will become a recurring program during midterm and presidential election years. At this event every two years, festival attendees will be able to get information about their voter registration status, complete voter registration forms, and learn how to cast their ballots in the November elections, all in an atmosphere that celebrates the responsibilities of democratic citizenship.

Students will take primary responsibility for the event, including planning event logistics, coordinating volunteers, and developing public relations and promotional materials. Students taking the lead in this project will be enrolled in GIS 4661: Stockton Votes and they will work together from the start of the semester to build this festival. This interdisciplinary course will provide structure to the efforts to plan and execute the festival with support from Dr. Abernathy, the instructor of record. In their efforts to make the festival a success, students will develop compelling messages to encourage participation in the festival (and in politics more generally), with these choices informed by their own creativity as well as the latest in political science, communications, and marketing research. Additionally, students enrolled in POLS 3610: Voting in America in spring 2018, who are currently studying this same research, will develop a set of suggestions to incentivize registration and voting; in fall 2018 and beyond, students will use these suggestions as another resource to inform their planning of the festival.

Involvement from students across different majors in the event planning will ensure that the festival is cultivated as a true university-wide event that will engage students across campus. In their efforts to plan the festival, students will build coalitions with student groups and institutional partners across campus to generate interest and solicit support for the event, and the presence of students from different majors and backgrounds will help foster these important connections. It is for these reasons that the festival will be planned by students in an interdisciplinary GIS course, allowing students from majors across campus to be part of this project. To ensure that a wide range of majors are represented, recruitment efforts will be made in advance of Fall 2018 course registration to advertise the course to students across campus.

In addition to their efforts around the festival on the Galloway campus, there will be specific efforts made to connect with the local community and Stockton's other campus locations. Students will reach out to the Galloway community, inviting area residents to participate in the festival through outreach at the Galloway Township branch of the Atlantic County Library System. Information about how to register and where to vote will also be directly advertised to patrons at the Galloway Township library location. And though the festival will be hosted on the Galloway campus, students will compile voter registration packets and guides as well as promotional materials to be provided at the other Stockton campus locations, including Hammonton, Manahawkin, and Atlantic City. Students will deliver these organized materials to Stockton's other campus locations, working with staff at the facilities to ensure that the materials are accessible.

Assessment Plan: What are your anticipated outcomes and specific measurements for success?

The central outcome for this project will be the one-day Stockton Votes Festival on the Galloway campus to take place biennially, starting in Fall 2018. However, as part of this signature event on the Galloway campus, outreach to the area community and to Stockton's other campuses will extend the reach of this project. As noted above, there will be outreach to the Galloway community, in partnership with the Galloway Township branch of the Atlantic County Library, to invite area residents to the festival activities. And there will be voting promotional materials and voter registration packets developed for other Stockton campus locations.

As this will be a recurring event on campus, assessment efforts will be an important part of the overall project. The data gathered about the impacts of the inaugural Stockton Votes Festival in Fall 2018 will inform planning for the event in the future. Students will carefully track the success of the festival, logging each contact with students, faculty, staff, and community members attending the festival and noting the outcome observed from that contact (Did they identify their polling place? Did they register to vote? Did they request an absentee ballot?). With each interaction that they have at the festival, students will also assess the effectiveness of the different messages that they use in their interactions to discern whether certain pitches resonate more with participants; the results will offer insights about messages to focus on in future festivals and in ongoing registration or voter engagement efforts on campus. Students will track these interactions during the event itself and each student will produce a report that summarizes all contacts from the festival; the individual reports from each student will be compiled for a full picture of the observable impacts of the Stockton Votes Festival. There will be an absolute count conducted of the number of voter registration forms and mail-in ballot request forms provided and collected at the festival as another metric of the festival's effects.

In order to better track participation, festival attendees may be asked to swipe their Stockton ID cards; in the event that this is asked of attendees, this would allow for collection of participants' contact information which could facilitate a brief follow-up survey with festival attendees to provide better measurement of attendees' subsequent involvement in the November election.

Budget for Stockton Votes Festival

The budget requested – a total of $2,400 – will be used over two cycles of this festival, in 2018 and 2020. The funds will provide support for the printing of voter registration forms and mail-in ballot request forms, postage for mail-in ballot request forms (postage is not needed for registration forms), and organizational materials to effectively catalog these materials. Additionally, funds will be allocated to provide décor for the festival.

Fall 2018

Printing: posters and promotional materials.....	$250
Printing: voter registration forms and mail-in ballot forms.....	$300
Stamps: 300 stamps for mail-in ballot request forms.....	$150
Organizational materials: binders, folders for forms.....	$100
Décor: balloons, streamers, etc.....	$400
Total budget for 2018:	$1200

Fall 2020*

Printing: posters and promotional materials.....	$250
Printing: voter registration forms and mail-in ballot forms.....	$300
Stamps: 300 stamps for mail-in ballot request forms.....	$150
Organizational materials: binders, folders for forms.....	$50
Décor: balloons, streamers, etc.....	$450
Total budget for 2020:	$1200

*Note that the budget for Fall 2020 largely reflects the same expenses as Fall 2018, except that a lower amount will be allocated toward organizational materials as the initial purchase of folders and binders in 2018 will be reused in 2020 and fewer additional purchases in this category will likely be required. As a result, in 2020, some of the funds have been shifted from an organizational materials line-item to the décor line-item, resulting in a slight expansion of décor funds in 2020 relative to 2018.

About This Report

Thank you for participating in the National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement (NSLVE). Since NSLVE's launch in 2013, more than 1,000 colleges and universities have signed up to receive their voting rates for the 2012, 2014 and 2016 federal elections. Along with others, your institution's participation in this study has allowed us to build a robust database of nearly 30 million college student records, about 10 million for each election year, that serve as a foundation for innovative research on college student political learning and engagement in democracy.

NSLVE is a signature initiative of the Institute for Democracy and Higher Education (IDHE) at Tufts University's Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life. The mission of IDHE is to shift college and university priorities and culture to advance political learning, agency, and equity. We achieve our mission through research, resource development, technical assistance, and advocacy.

About the Data

The voter registration and voting rates in this report reflect the percentage of your institution's students who were eligible to vote and who actually voted in the 2012 and 2016 elections. These results are based on enrollment records your institution submitted to the National Student Clearinghouse (FERPA-blocked records excluded) and publicly available voting files collected by Catalyst.

Institutional voting rates are adjusted by deducting an estimated number of students identified by each institution as non-resident aliens and reported to the Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS). For breakdowns by student characteristics, we cannot consistently adjust for students who are non-resident aliens, resident aliens, or undocumented students. This may result in your institution's actual voting rate being higher than we report. To calculate that percentage, and to read more about NSLVE data, see our FAQ on Campus Reports. Please also see Creating and Maintaining the NSLVE Database paper for a more detailed study methodology.

Reviewing the Data

Use the following key to interpret the charts:

* = number of students is less than 10

n/a = no data was collected or calculated for this field.

What to do next?

- Review the data. This report provides a baseline measure of your students' engagement in democracy in 2012 and 2016, and compares your institution's voting rates to similar institutions. Visit our website for more comparison data.
- Share the report widely and strategically, including posting it online.
- Put your data into practice. Use our IDHE Resources to guide you.
- Address your campus climate for student political learning, discourse, and participation. Start by bringing the IDHE team to your campus or using the IDHE self-assessment rubric available on our website.
- Partner with IDHE. We are available with virtual office hours, webinars, brown bag discussions and in-person trainings.
